Complete guide to saving, organizing, recovering, and accessing your content

Version 1.0

October 2026

https://solicionespro.com

Purpose

This application was developed to help internet users store, classify, and tag the most relevant public content, regardless of which platform the links are on. This makes searching for content across different platforms or URLs faster, avoiding the need to browse through browser history or favorites. This saves time when searching within the tool, since searches run across all fields — category/subcategory, links, creation date, and most importantly, the content description that each user writes themselves and therefore remembers how they phrased it.

Benefits

Reduced search time on a single platform, and effectiveness in finding the link with the content you need. Platforms or content owners will get more repeat visits, since links are easy to find and users can revisit content, generating more traffic — because people normally get frustrated and give up when they search and can't find something quickly.

Terms and Conditions

When registering in the application you must read the terms in order to proceed with registration; the terms make clear that you must not include sensitive or personal information.

Free 30 calendar-day version starting from the moment you register.

Categories

On the home page, after logging in for the first time, you will find a Category called 'Enlaces Utiles' and a Subcategory called 'Favoritos'. Therefore, you will be able to store useful content links while creating your own Categories/Subcategories, as we show you how to do in this Chapter

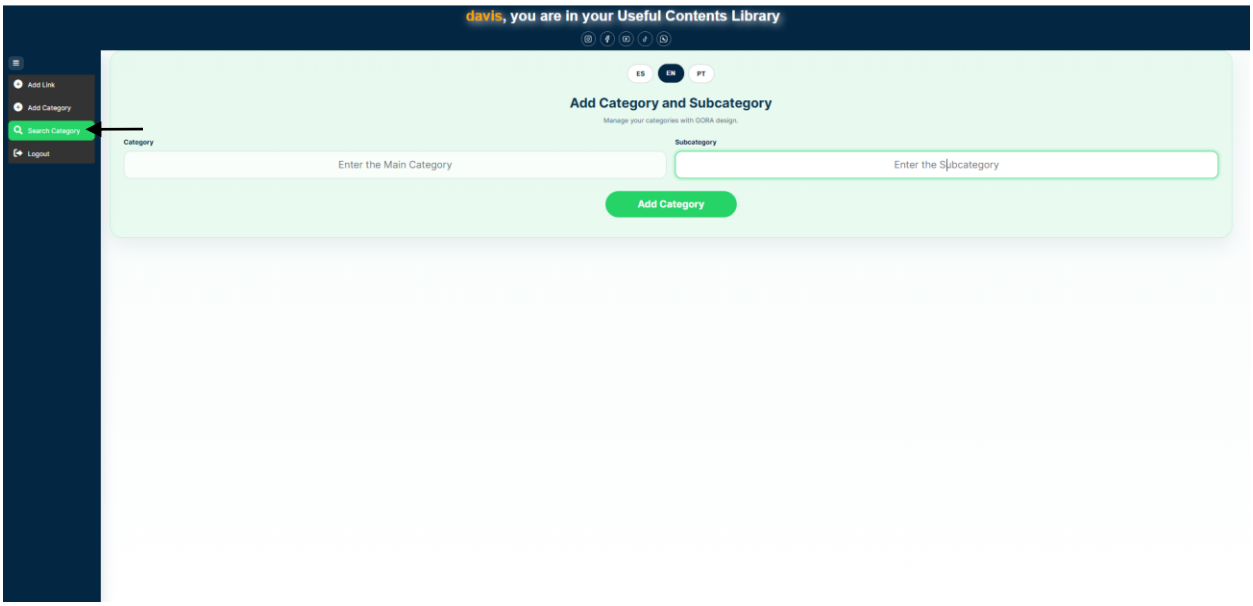

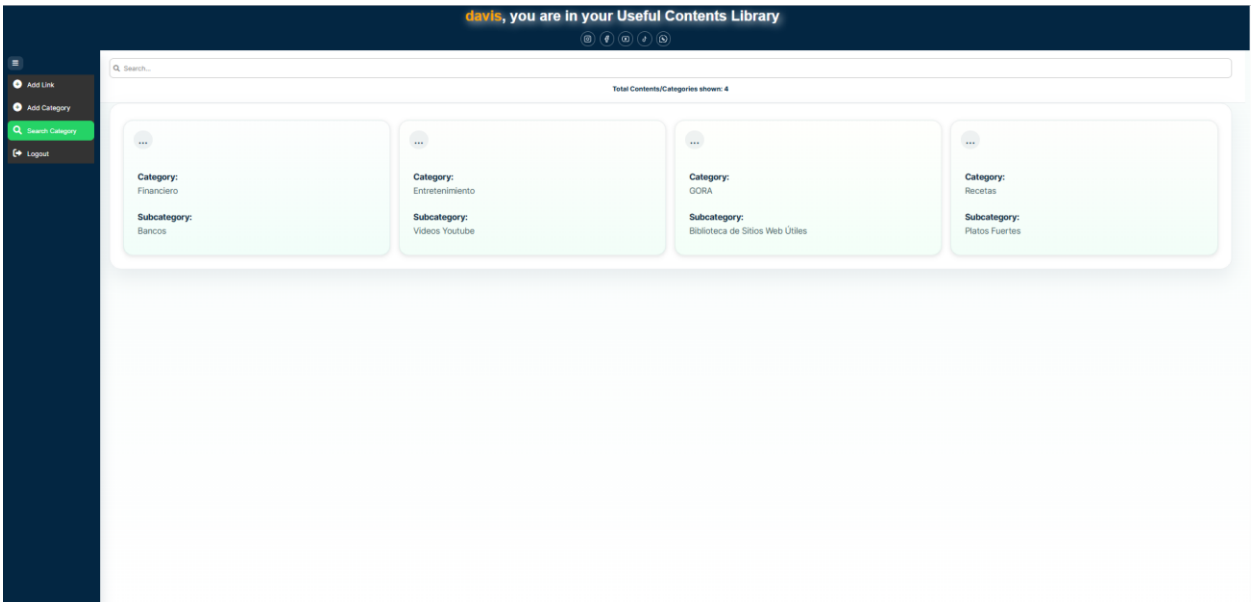

- To add a Category, select the corresponding option to make the addition. You can add as many as you want, based on your needs, in order to classify link content — this makes later searches more effective.
- Enter the Category and Subcategory name. A Category cannot have a duplicate Subcategory, but you may reuse a category name with a different Subcategory. You can also add new categories and reuse the names of previous Subcategories.

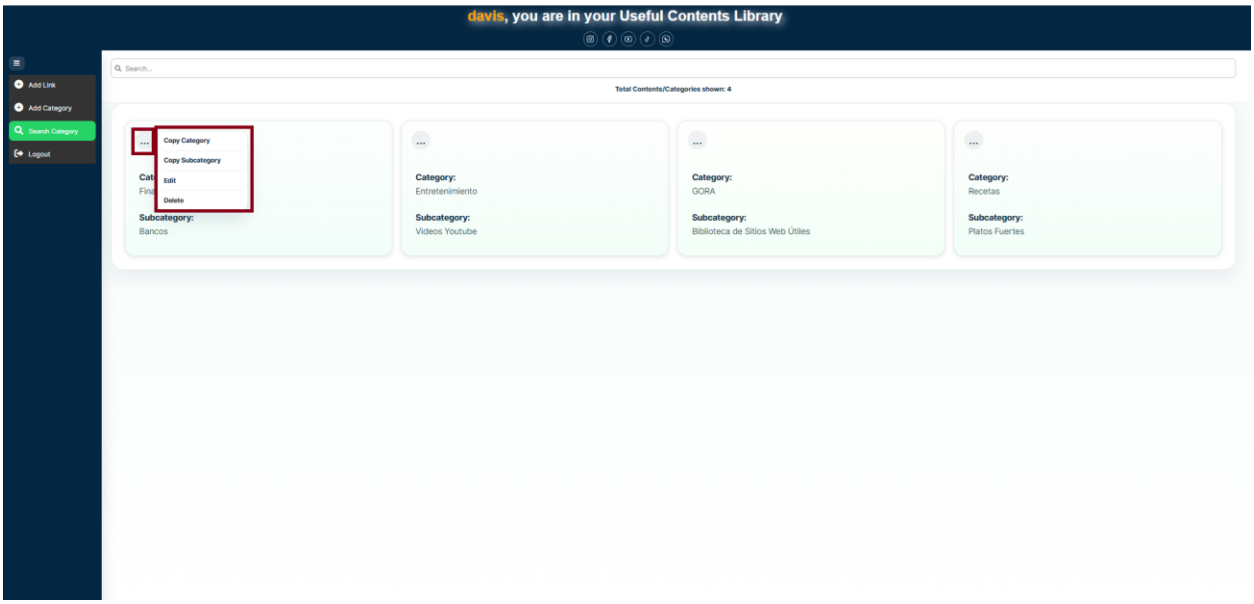

- When the new Category and its Subcategory are added, a green banner will appear confirming it was saved successfully. To make sure it was saved, you can use the search engine by typing part of the category and/or subcategory name. This powerful search engine avoids unnecessary column-filtering steps, and you don't need to type complete words or follow column order.

- If you need to edit a Category and/or Subcategory, select it using the three dots above it and a menu will appear with the available options (Copy Category, Copy Subcategory, Edit, Delete) to apply to the Category.

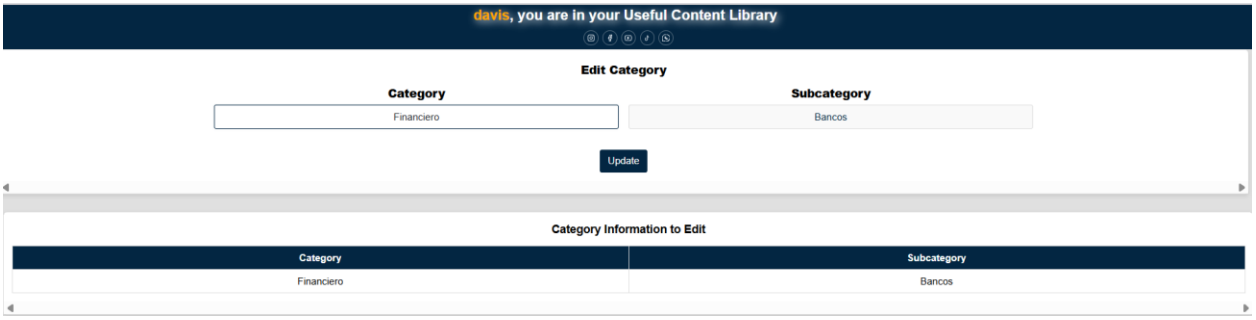

Copy Category: Copies the category in case you are going to create a subcategory under it — you'll need to enter the same category name so the subcategory stays linked to it.

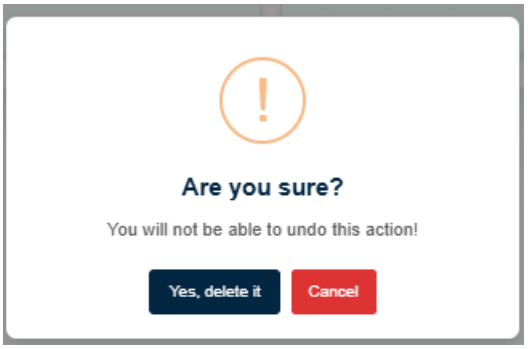

Copy Subcategory: In case you want to reuse the name.

- Edit: used to edit the Category and Subcategory in case there was a mistake when typing it or assigning the Subcategory. Make your changes and then select Update by clicking the button. Keep in mind that if you delete a category and its subcategory, the next time you search for a content link whose category or subcategory no longer exists, it will default to the first item on each list. To fix this you can: edit the Link Record to assign it an existing category, or create a new category and then assign it to the useful-content record.

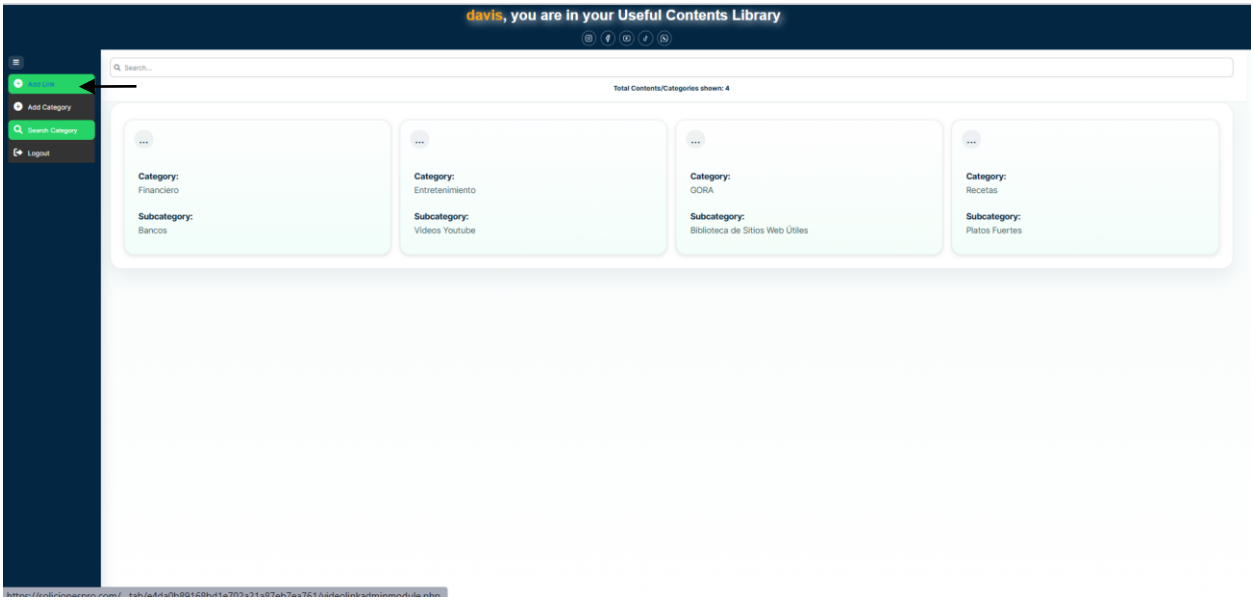

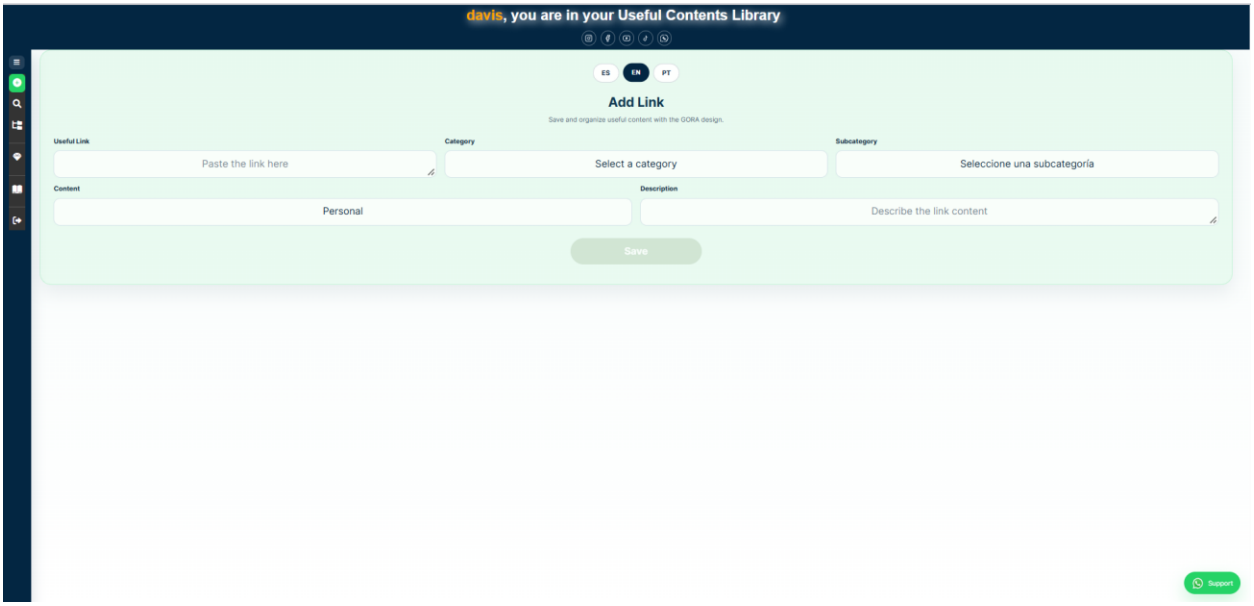

Delete: Use this when you want to delete the Category and its corresponding Subcategory. This action cannot be undone.

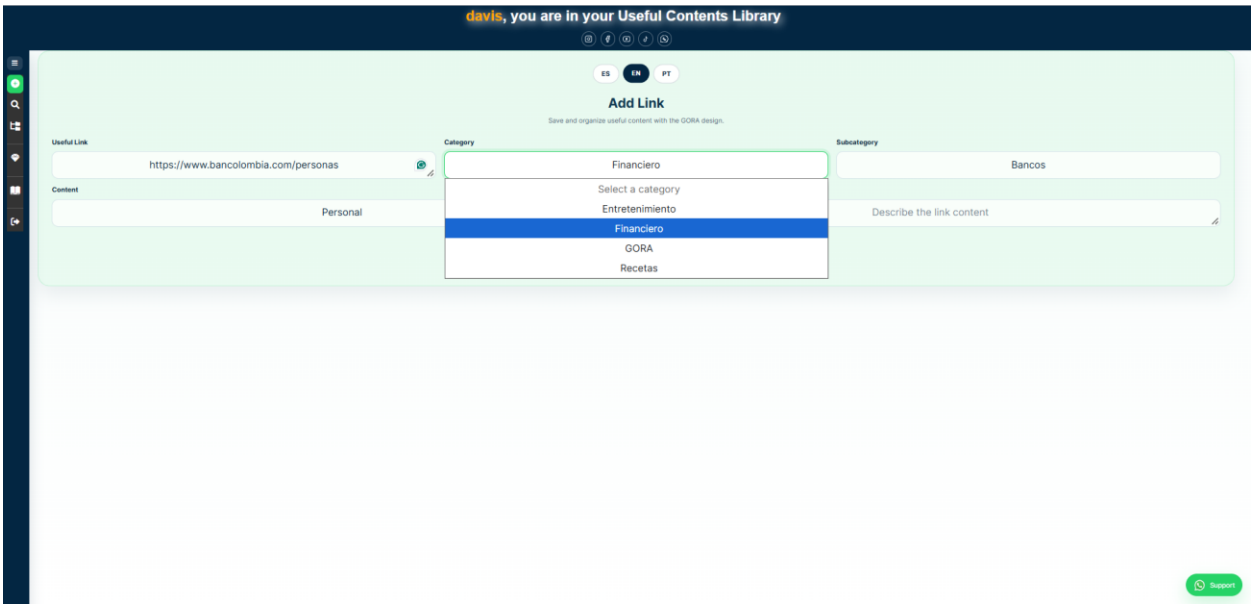

Useful Content

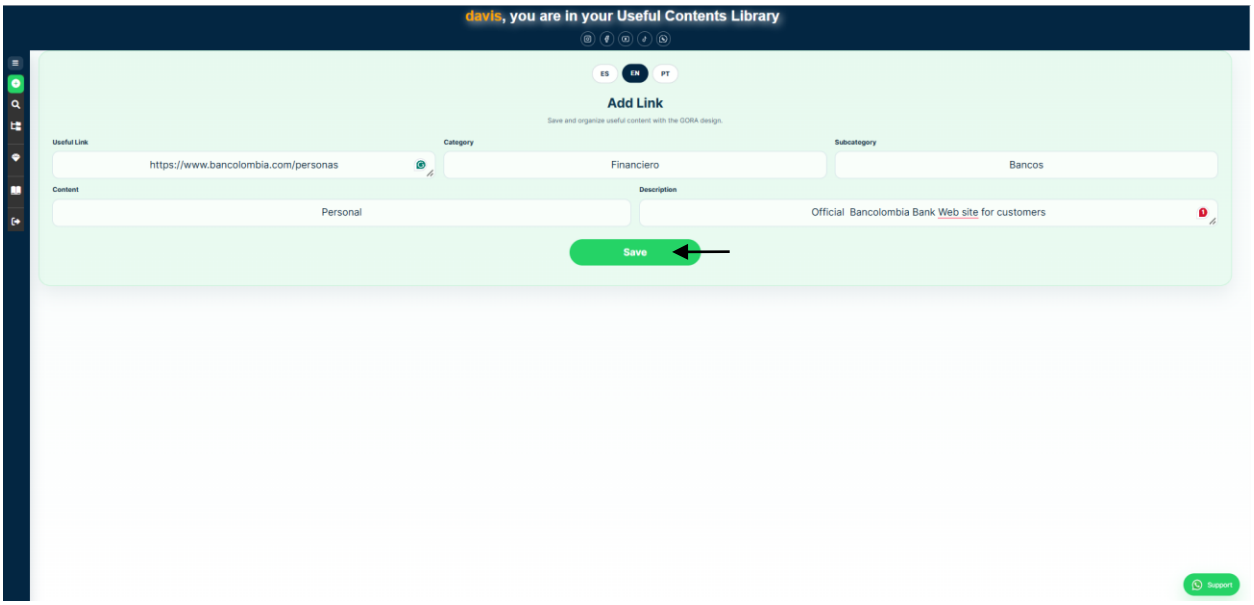

- To add links to useful content from any public site, regardless of which platform it is hosted on, go to the tool's main page and fill in the Link field, select the Category and Subcategory, add the Content, and — most importantly — write the text in the link's content Description, which is key for an effective search later on.

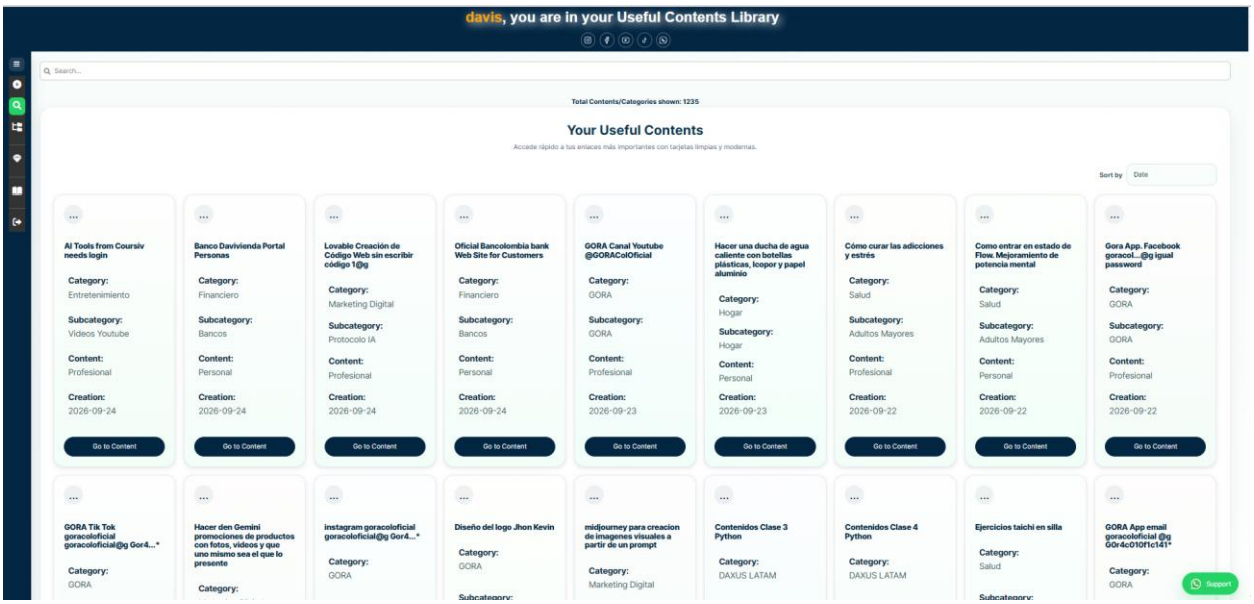

- Once all the fields are filled in to save the link, select the Save option.

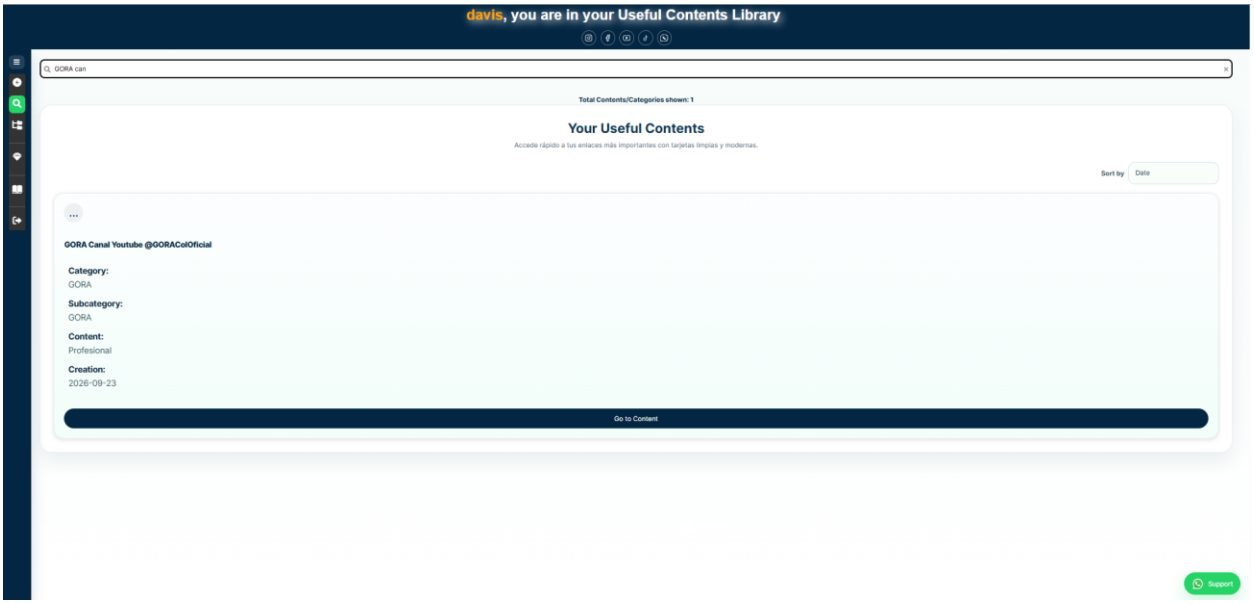

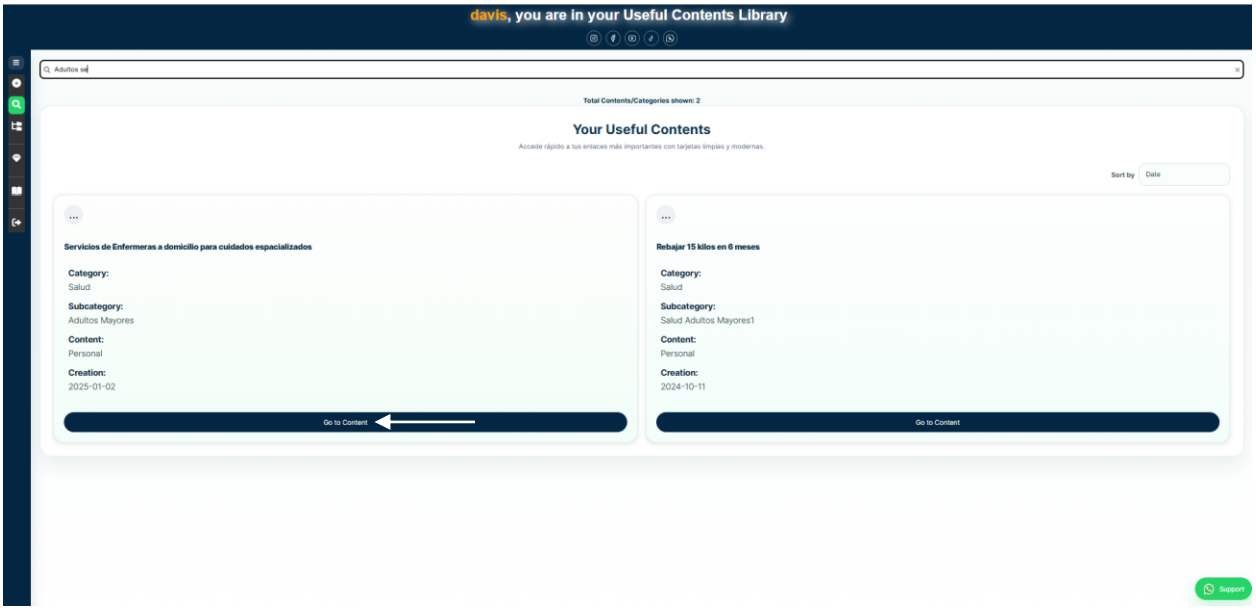

- A banner will appear indicating that the link was saved successfully. When you need to find the content, you can use the search engine by typing part of the category and/or subcategory name. This powerful search engine avoids unnecessary column-filtering steps — you don't need to type complete words or follow column order.

When using the search box with keywords for what you want to see or retrieve — note that this user has more than 1,200 saved content links — with just a few words you'll find the content in seconds, and you can access it without worrying about which platform it's on. A single click takes you to the content (Go to Content).

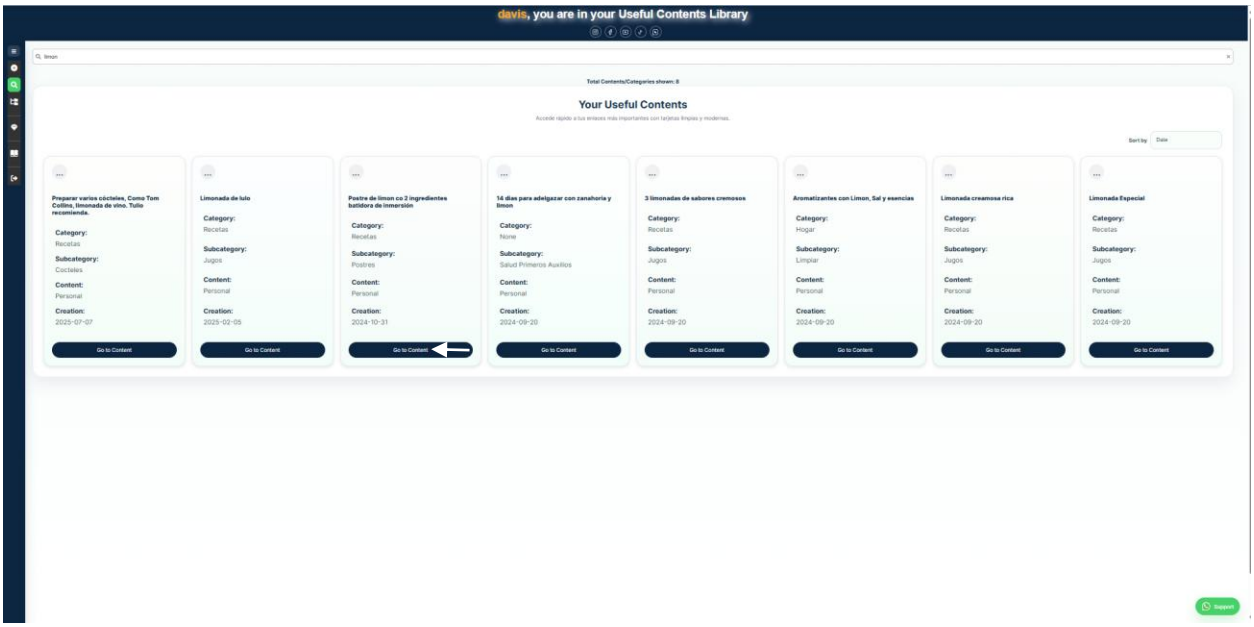

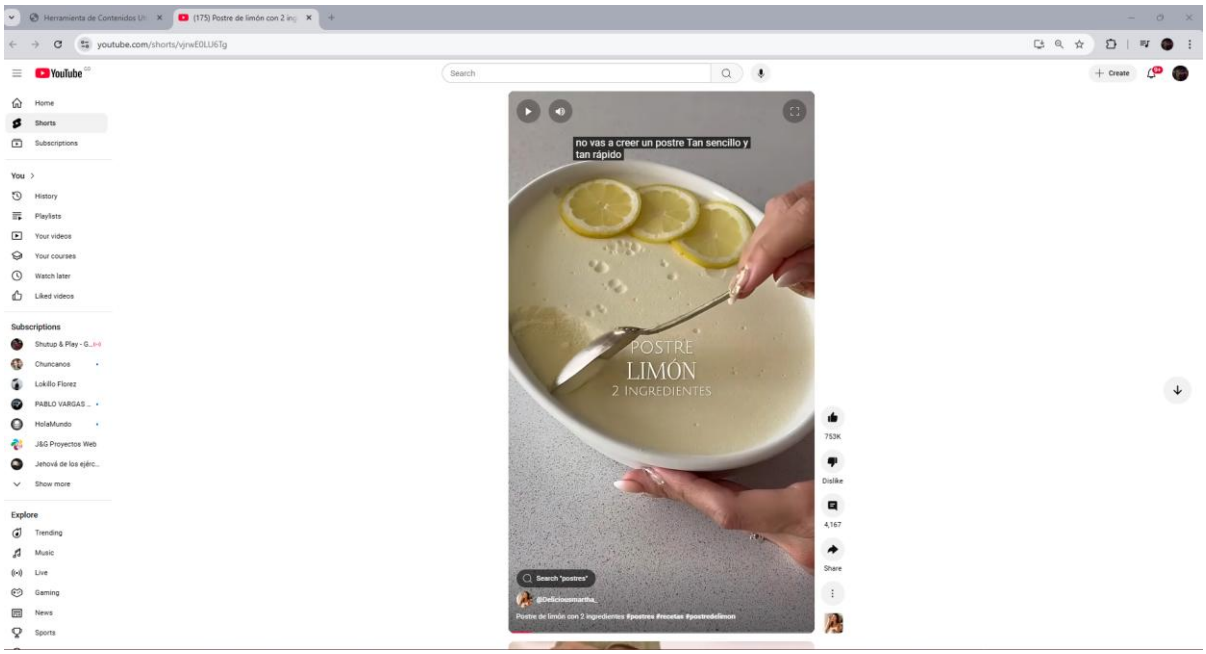

- When viewing a piece of content you can click the link, which will open a new window to display it. Example: Home-care assistance services for older adults

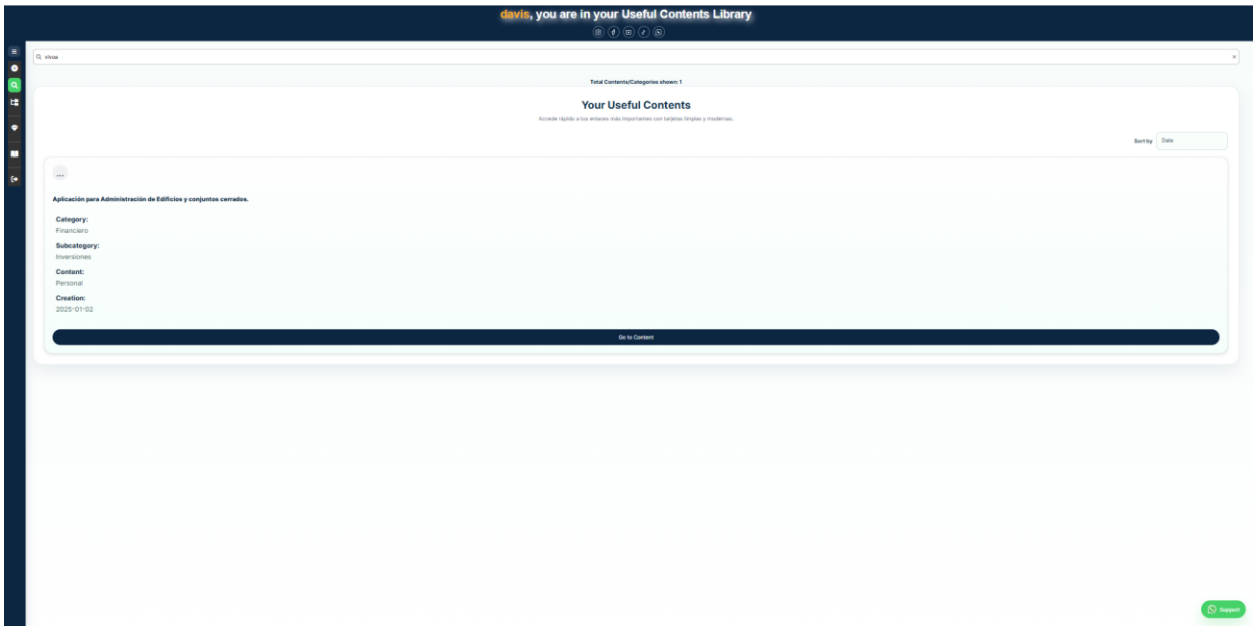

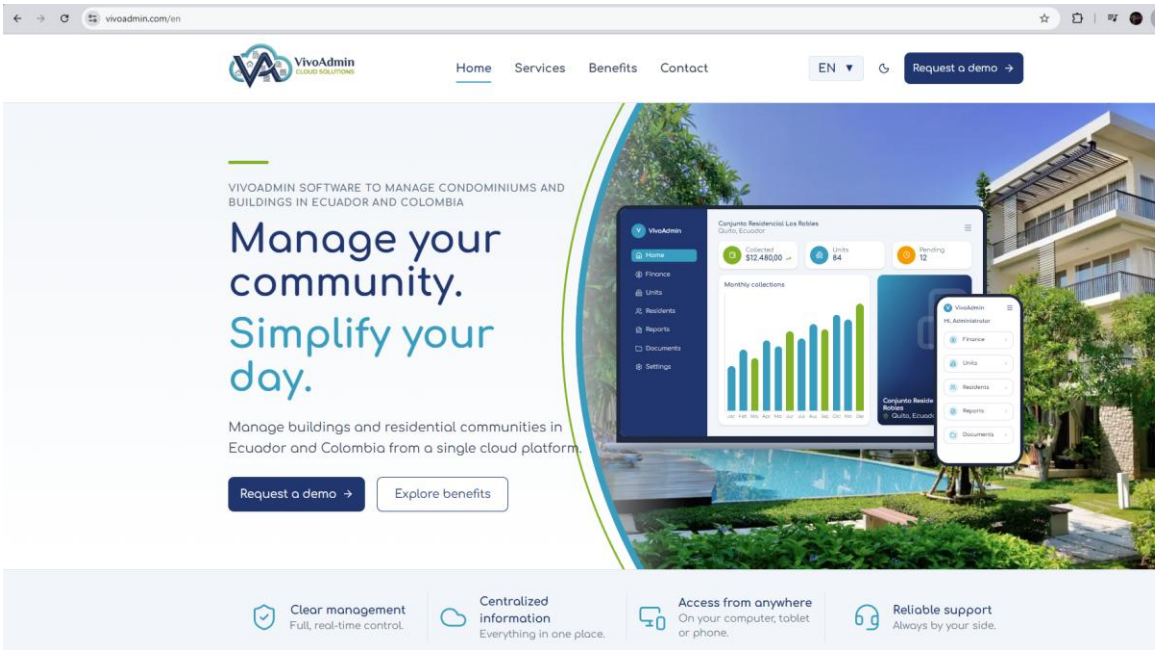

- Content from any platform — Instagram, YouTube, Facebook, etc. Searches can be done using words, even partial or out of order, entered in the search box, which checks every field: link, category, subcategory, description, and creation date. This means searching saves you from having to remember which application holds the content.
